Re: Rosalind Jamerson (Cobb)

This is about one remarkable person, Rosalind is so dedicated to serving the sick and disabled it's truly remarkable. No one has mention how incredible she really is. Rosalind is a notary public, and she has dedicated her notary public services to anyone, (sick, disabled, hospitalized, seniors) and to those less fortunate free of charge.

She also works with paralegals & attorney firms to help prepare documents so that they possibly will have the appropriate document they need without paying any out-of-pocket fees.

Rosalind is a certified loan document signer with the National Notary Association and contracts with title companies, mortgage companies and other signing closing businesses that generates donations, and every penny goes right back to help support the Memra Association.

Rosalind never complains, goes out any time of the day and night, plus weekends. Not to mention how tolerant she is with the families, wait for witnessing to be present no matter how long the wait. When she find out they are deprived or goes to their home to notarized a document and notice they have no TV, or appliances she places that item in their home. I never known anyone to give all they have to help someone else.

I cannot be there because I've moved away, and I know she will just murder me for saying this but the community needs to know Rosalind is here and help is on the way.
